Global Enterprise Experience Personal Reflection Requirements

Participants need to submit a one-page personal reflection sharing their insights from the Global Enterprise Experience to be eligible for any prizes, certificates, or letters of recommendation. The reflection is evidence of participation in the team and the contest. It is also a key piece of evidence for the Global Leader Award and the Global Peer-Leader Award.

It is also a learning experience. The contest aims to develop participants’ skills and experience to become global leaders who can work in partnership with diverse peoples to make a difference. Reflecting on what did and didn’t work in this challenge is part of becoming a global leader.

Your personal reflection may consider many aspects of the experience, such as:

- What was your GEE experience? What happened? What worked and didn’t work?
- In what ways were you a good peer leader or leader, through contributing to:
  - Team creativity
  - Team productivity
  - Team problem solving and decision making
  - Team unity
  - Team leadership
  - Helping others to succeed
- What are your insights from the experience? You may want to consider:
  - Personal development
  - Social entrepreneurship
  - Team management
  - Global virtual teams
  - Communication
  - Leadership
  - Cross cultural management
  - Other cultures and world views
  - Creating a better world
  - Or something else …

The personal insight needs to be well written, uniquely your world view, interesting, readable, candid and insightful. Judges are just as interested in your efforts to try new skills and your personal growth through error, as they are in evidence of doing a good job as a peer-leader.

Winning and highly recommended personal reflections are widely read by future contestants, so you may wish to think of your reflection as being a fascinating insight and aid for those who come after you. This is one more way you step up to being a global leader.

This reflection needs to be submitted via http://enrol.geebiz.org/Login.aspx. Enter your main email address and GEE ID number, and then click on “Choose File” to upload your reflection. It is due on May 22nd - it is on time so long as it is the 22nd anywhere in the world.

On the reflection please include your name, country in which you are currently living, personal ID for the contest and whether English is a first or second language. The judges try to take account of whether English is a first language in comparing the quality of journals.

If you have any queries please ask your team leader first, and then email deb[at]windeaters.co.nz.
